The New York Aquarium Journal
by Ross Socolof

Klee in his excellent series of articles on the origins of our Aquarium Hobby illustrates the frontpiece of volume 1 #10 of this series. It is very different from the only copy that I have seen which is volume 1 #4. This is illustrated and no reference is made to New York Aquarium Journal. It would appear that the words New York were included in the title after volume 1 #4 was published. It is believed only ten issues were printed from October 1876 through September 1877. The involved parties included some of the most important American ornamental fish keepers. W. C. Coup, one of the proprietors, was involved with P. T. Barnum in the original New York Aquarium adventures. Henry Butler was one of Barnum's partners at the original American Museum and Grand Aquarium. Butler published "The Family Aquarium" in 1858. This is one of the two first books published on the aquarium hobby in America. The other is "Life Beneath The Waters" published in 1858 by Arthur M. Edwards. Fred Mather was an author and the Superintendent. He wrote "Modern Fishculture" in 1899. Anyone who is interested in this early Public Aquarium should get a copy of the March 1877 issue of Scribners Monthly Magazine which contains a sixteen page article about the New York Aquarium that makes fascinating reading.

Collectors of Aquarium Literature Welcomes you to our inaugural issue. CAL is for collectors who desire more information about tropical fish literature, collecting, and articles on your favorite fish. Dave and I hope to provide you with the opportunity to advertise your wants, trades, or sales. Remember that CAL is your organization, the more you participate, the more everyone benefits.

Regards,
Paul D. Harvey
